3. The purposes of the processing for which the personal data are intended & the legal basis for the processing

Protect Children collects personal data for the purposes of the organization of its events, which requires providing an e-mail address, name and surname. The collection of this personal data is based on the data subject's own given consent. Protect Children also collects personal data for the purposes of its newsletter, based on the data subject's own given consent. Subscribing to the newsletter requires giving the following information: name and surname, e-mail address. The personal data collected for purposes of the newsletter are stored in the database of Mailchimp, a company operating in the United States of America, in accordance with obligations posed by the GDPR and American data privacy laws. More detailed information about Mailchimp's data privacy practices can be found here. Personal data collected for other purposes are not released to any third parties.

Protect Children also collects personal data from participants to the "Justice Initiative" project, based upon the data subject's own given consent. Participants are required to give the following personal data: name and surname, address, contact information (phone number and e-mail address) and in some cases a bank account number, for the purposes of compensating fees related to the project.

Protect Children is a non-governmental non-profit association and has applied for a fundraising license. Protect Children is committed to careful management of the personal data of registered donors. The maintenance and development of the donor register will comply with the GDPR as well as good data protection practices, based on the data subject's own given consent.

Protect Children's Executive Director processes the organization's internal personal data for purposes of the daily functioning of the organization (including the following functions: payroll, accounting and internal accounting, invoicing), as well as for providing information on upcoming events. These activities comply with the GDPR, as well as with general good data protection practices.

Protect Children complies with the obligations under the Finnish Associations Act (503/1989) and the GDPR.

4. The processing of registered personal data & the period for which the personal data will be stored

Protect Children abides by data privacy laws and good data protection practices when processing personal data. We process personal data in a confidential and safe manner. We process and store data only for as long as their intended purpose remains relevant, e.g., for the duration of a subscription to the newsletter or duration of participation in a project. Subscribers to the newsletter have the right to interrupt their subscription, whereafter their data will also be removed.

5. The rights of the data subject

The data subject has the right to request access from the controller to and rectification or erasure of personal data or restriction of processing concerning the data subject or to object to processing. These things can be requested from the controller and data protection officer.
